

 The flag of Western Australia, featuring a blue field with seven white stars in the canton and a yellow field with the state coat of arms in the fly.	 The coat of arms of Western Australia, featuring a shield with a white castle on a blue field, topped with a crown and crossed swords, and a gear at the base.	 The coat of arms of South Australia, featuring a shield with a white castle on a blue field, topped with a crown and crossed swords, and a gear at the base. The shield is flanked by a black swan and a white swan. The motto scroll reads: "For the Queen, the Law, and the People."
 The flag of South Australia, featuring a black field with seven white stars in the canton and an orange field with a white gear in the fly.	 The flag of the Northern Territory, featuring a black star in the center of a white circle, surrounded by seven white circles.	 The coat of arms of the Northern Territory, featuring a shield with a white star on a red field, flanked by two kangaroos. The shield is topped with a crest featuring a bird and a shield. The motto scroll reads: "For the Queen, the Law, and the People."